

Swissquote and Manchester United announce global partnership

Today in Manchester, Swissquote and Manchester United announced an agreement on a global multi-year partnership. Manchester United is one of the most popular and successful football teams in the world. With this cooperation Swissquote is aiming to share its services and know-how with a broader, international public.

In its 136-year history, the club, which is listed on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE symbol: MANU), has won 62 trophies and established itself as a leading sports brand with a worldwide community of over 659 million followers. This large, committed community offers Manchester United a worldwide platform with which it can communicate with its fans and network of sponsors.

"This is a further milestone in the history of Swissquote. Manchester United and Swissquote complement each other perfectly for a partnership. We share the same values – transparency and confidence –, enjoy a good reputation, and are above all very solid, an important condition for long-term success", explains Swissquote CEO Marc Bürki.

Richard Arnold, Manchester United Group Managing Director commented: "Swissquote is one of the top ten largest Forex brokers in the world and is by far the strongest and most reliable competitor in the market. The technology and services it offers are superior to anything else available, offering customers the ability to take their finances into their own hands. Much like Manchester United, Swissquote strives for perfection, looking to innovate, influence and enhance the industry it works within by recreating the future of banking."
